Painter Training

In accordance with the Health and Safety legislation, the employer must ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, that employees receive “such information, instruction, training and supervision as is necessary to ensure” their health and safety at work.

It is therefore essential that Painters are given sufficient training and information on the equipment and products specifically used to ensure they work safely and efficiently.

Qualifications

Companies should also support Painters in gaining a nationally recognised qualification as it is possible that only Painters qualified to the national standard will meet the future requirements of the industry.

To be assessed as competent you should be working towards your NVQ qualification in Decorative Occupations within the areas of P & D you are working in such as:

- Painting by brush and roller
- Spray Finishes
- Textured finishes
- Complex stencil designs
- Hanging wall coverings & wide-width vinyl's

These qualifications are recognised by your industry and the qualifications are based on National Occupational Standards that have been approved by the various sections of the Painting industry.

Many construction firms and their clients already insist that workers hold these qualifications.

Qualification assessment methods

New Entrant NVQ assessments and On Site Assessment and Training (OSAT) routes are available and usually takes 2 – 4 months to complete from induction to completing the qualification.

Other recommended training

The following is a list of possible training that you may need depending on your specific area of work. The list is not exhaustive or definitive.

Painters may require other training throughout their career, such as: Induction training, scaffolding awareness, specific product training, working at heights, ladders, fall arrest, power & hand tools, confined spaces, goods hoist, mobile towers, harnesses, health and hygiene, manual handling - lifting & handling manual loads. Fire prevention, site security, working with the public, first aid, fire extinguishers, defensive driving, refresher training.

Painting & Decorating Association (PDA)

Does a registration card exist for this occupation

Yes, Blue and Gold cards are available Painters

As well as the qualification many construction firms and their clients already insist that workers hold a relevant registration card. The CSR (Construction Skills Register or an affiliated scheme such as the CSCS (Construction Skills Certification Scheme) would appear to be the most widely held cards however other schemes may be available and it will in most cases be the client, main contractor or sub-contractor that determines if a card is required and what the preference is.

To receive a card, you must hold an NVQ/SVQ or acceptable equivalent and pass a health and safety assessment or training.
